

1 Equestrian Multipurpose Building Mosaic Murals, 2012 Mike Mandel
 Porcelain and glass tile
 Equestrian Multipurpose Building
 Will Rogers Memorial Center
 FWPA Commission

- What source material do you think the artist used for this composition?
- Why do you think the artist selected these images?
- How does the scale of the imagery impact your experience?

2 Earth Fountain, 2016 Philippe Klinefelter
 Texas red granite
 4800 Camp Bowie Blvd, 76107
 Byers Green Triangle
 FWPA Commission

- Do you think the sphere is made out of pieces that have been joined together or one solid piece?
- The artist is interested in geology. How does water relate to geology and how is it reflected in the work?
- How does the landscaping of the park affect the work?

3 Oxbow Traces, 2013, Tommy Fitzpatrick
Trailing the Trinity, 2013, Devon Nowlin
 Automotive Paint on Aluminum
 Parking Available at 2700 Hulen St, 76107
 Clearfork Main Street Pedestrian Bridge
 FWPA Commission

- To what extent is the history of the Trinity River reflected in both of these works?
- In Fitzpatrick's work, what do the blue and purple lines represent?
- Why does Nowlin crop some of the figures? Is it effective?

When most people think of public art, they think of statues of historic figures, but public art can take many forms, such as a free-standing sculpture, a mosaic integrated into a building's architecture, or even something functional like a water fountain or table. What are some of the creative ways artists incorporated art into public spaces that you saw today?

Share pictures from your visit on Social Media and tag @FWPublicArt or use the hashtags #FWPublicArt